Capture Three Towns Today, Some Troops Battle in Town of LaHaye

By Wes Gallagher

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, AEF, July 6.—(P)—Three more towns have fallen to Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's footslogging American infantrymen flanking La Haye Du Puits, the Germans' western anchor point in Normandy, supreme headquarters announced today, and the French underground army has liberated whole sections of France.

In the general fighting, headquarters announced the destruction of 62 enemy planes for the loss of 29 Allied aircraft in action yesterday and up to early today.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, AEF, July 6.—(P)—Americans, making steady progress down the Cherbourg peninsula, captured three towns today.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, AEF, July 6.—(P)—Two hard fighting columns of the American First army plunged southward beyond besieged La Haye Du Puits today both to the east and west, outflanking the western anchor of the enemy's Normandy line while other troops battled inside the town itself after capturing the railway station nearly half a mile to the north.

The Americans forcing their way south on Cherbourg peninsula reached La Haye du Puits, three miles southwest of La Haye, while on the east another spearhead penetrated the Forêt du Mont Caen, three miles southeast of the town, and battled the German 17th Panzer Grenadiers for possession of vital high ground in the wooded region.

As the doughboys advanced virtually foot by foot against the stubborn Germans, a furious tank and infantry battle raged near Caen on the eastern flank of the Normandy battle area. The Allied command said Canadian and British forces held firm against a strong German counter attack in the Carpiquet area, just west of Caen.

Headquarters announced that Nazi troops were more densely packed in defense positions in the Caen region than on any battle ground in this or the last war. The supreme command said that the German troops there had reached a concentration of one division to slightly less than three miles of the front—a situation that leaves little room for maneuvering.

Allies Closely Packed
The Allied troops also are closely packed, with little freedom of movement.

The German high command was reported throwing tanks and infantry lavishly into the battle, and hand-to-hand fighting was going on for the airfields south of newly-captured Carpiquet.

The mile-long Carpiquet airfield is a no-man's land and an officer observer reported to supreme headquarters that three sets of two huge hangars had been destroyed.

"German tanks can be seen moving among the remains of the hangars and shells whistle from both sides of the airfield," he said, adding:

"Dead Germans lie around the tracks (of the Bayeux-Carpiquet railroad) and dead cattle lie in the adjoining fields."

The airfield, built in 1938, is one of the best in Normandy and has been used extensively by the Germans.

The close packing of the troops leaves little opportunity for flanking moves.

It was agreed here that a deluge of high explosives from the air and a mighty artillery barrage are needed to crack a hole in the German lines around Caen. Today's clearing weather gave promise of the most intense air activity for three weeks.

Reasons for 'B,' 'C' Cards Public Record

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(P)—The amount of gasoline allotted drivers on "B" and "C" cards, and the reasons for the extra allotments, has become a matter of public record.

The Office of Price Administration has authorized local boards to make public the facts by various methods to the extent that such publication does not interfere with the board's work.

Less Hectic Days in France

Mrs. Luna K. Hodges, 303 East Second street, this week received a letter from Colonel Arthur G. Salisbury, which was written June 23 in Normandy, France. The letter was to let Mrs. Hodges know that he was all right and was getting along nicely, as well as being one of the first American fliers to go to Normandy.

In his letter was enclosed a picture of the Colonel which was taken in England recently, since he underwent an operation for appendicitis several weeks ago. He told in the letter that the days are not as hectic as they were sometime ago, indicating the first days of the invasion of France.

Colonel Salisbury has been made commander of a Thunderbolt fighter-bomber wing, among the first to be permanently based on the continent of Europe, according to a dispatch from the Ninth Air Force base. At the time of his promotion a little more than a year ago, Colonel Salisbury was the youngest man of his rank in the United States forces.

During recent weeks fighter-bomber groups under Colonel Salisbury's command have been carrying out strategic dive bombing attacks to support the invasion. He recently was commended by Lieut. General Omar Bradley over the action of his wing in strafing advancing reserves of the Nazi army.

Nimitz Views Future With Confidence

Lessons Learned At Saipan Will Aid in Assaults on Other Positions

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, July 6.—(P)—Impending slaughter of Japanese, massed body to body for a last ditch stand on Saipan and the swift seizure of a second enemy airfield 800 miles southeast of the Philippines added emphasis today to a highly significant prediction by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz.

"What we learn on Saipan we will use in assaults on other Japanese positions," he said at a press conference in which he pointed out that Saipan's larger land mass afforded valuable lessons for future operations.

"We are moving westward across the Pacific as rapidly as we can," the Admiral assured.

"And we continue to view the future with confidence."

Howard Handelman, representing the combined Allied press, reported today from aboard a flagship off Saipan that thousands of Japs, squeezed into the northwest eighth of the island, awaited the inevitable.

"The Japs, resigned to death and defeat, lay body to body in caves and pillboxes for a final, frantic gesture against Americans they know they can't halt," he said.

Massed with them were many of the island's 25,000 Japanese civilians, whose role in the bloody showdown was a source of conjecture.

Nearer to P. I.
At Noemfof in Dutch New Guinea's Geelvink bay, where the Southwest Pacific ground forces are 1,000 miles closer to the Philippines than they were a year ago, capture of Kornasoren airfield was announced today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Paratroops, dropped in force on two successive days, helped win it on the fourth of July. On Sunday, Sixth army troops opened the invasion of Noemfof, investing Kamiri airfield in the first hours. Kornasoren's advantage over Kamiri is that it can be enlarged into a heavy bomber base from which the Philippines can be pounded.

At Saipan, which is 3,800 miles nearer Nimitz' China coast goal than he was at Pearl harbor a year ago, Nimitz conceded that the fighting had been tougher than had been expected.

"Our troops have the situation well in hand and I think our forces will push on rapidly to (northeastern) end of the island," Nimitz said, at a diminishing rate in casualties.

Dies in Plane Crash

Within 45 Miles of Wilno, Gateway to Northern Baltics, New Thrust Today

LONDON, July 6.—(P)—Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin announced today the capture of Kowel, south of the Pripjat marshes and 70 miles southeast of Brest Litovsk.

By Eddy Gilmore

MOSCOW, July 6.—(P)—The Red army unleashed a great new thrust today in the direction of Pinsk and Brest Litovsk, while vanguards of Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky's Third White Russian army were reported within 45 miles of Wilno, gateway to the northern Baltic republics.

Like the beginning of the White Russian campaign, "the new drive was launched with terrific artillery barrages operating with mighty air support. It was too early, however, to tell whether it was a general offensive.

Cherniakhovsky's advance on Wilno from the southeast carried through Smorgonie, where his cavalry units were only 140 miles from the borders of East Prussia, front dispatches said.

Other Soviet troops mopping up the Minsk region proceeded with the liquidation of the battered remnants of the German 12th and 27th corps and the 39th tank corps.

Molodeczno, the latest major point to fall to the sweeping Russian offensive, was one of the mainstays of the German's 90-mile Vileika-Nesvizh line, a junction of the Minsk-Vilno and Polotsk-Lida railroads.

Two Way Advance
The way now appeared open for a simultaneous advance by Cherniakhovsky's third White Russian army and Gen. Ivan Bagramian's First Baltic army into Lithuania and Latvia.

There was no confirmation in Moscow of a German report that the vital communications center of Kowel, 215 miles southwest of Minsk, had been evacuated by Nazi troops.

(The Moscow radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Soviet monitor in London, said the Germans were counterattacking in the Baranovitch area, 81 miles southwest of Minsk, using infantry, tanks and aircraft. "Particularly fierce is the fighting going on," the broadcast said.

(Reuters quoted the Moscow radio as saying other German counterattacks were reported west of Molodeczno, but declaring "the Red army, however, is sweeping the Germans away in its drive to the west.")

Challenge Hitler's Position
Great waves of Stormoviks (dive bombers) hunted out the German salients in the Pinsk marshes, blasting them from low levels and driving the Nazis along the few roads leading back toward the Gorin river and Pinsk.

Military observers in Moscow saw in this new activity a challenge to Hitler's whole central position and if coupled with the southern White Russian offensive, believed it should carry straight to Brest Litovsk and Warsaw.

Hope Some Miners Trapped Still Live

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(P)—Officials of the bureau of mines clung today to hope that at least some of the 64 miners trapped by fire in a coal mine near Bellaire, Ohio, are alive.

Daniel Harrington, chief of the health and safety service, said some men survived a similar fire in the mine two years ago and probably knew what to do to save themselves and fellow workers. In the previous blaze, he said, the men barricaded themselves from the fire fumes and were dug out alive several days later.

It Was No Joke, A Real Lion Roar After Bicyclist

DENVER, July 6.—(P)—Terrified and bedraggled, a 15-year-old boy, Marvin Spager, raced on his bicycle to a drug store near City Park last night, shouting:

"A lion is after me!"

The druggist, at first skeptical, finally called police.

Police, highway patrolmen and volunteers, armed with riot guns and tear gas, sped to the scene.

And sure enough they found a lion. He had escaped from his zoo cage and was herded back into it by the hastily assembled safari.

Capt. Peter English, Pilot on D Day, Then Back for Injured

Capt. Peter English, of San Francisco whose wife the former Miss Barbara Botz, of Sedalia, is making her home here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Botz, for the duration, was one of the pilots of Troop Carrier transports to carry the first wounded men from the Second Front back to an English port, by air, according to an article sent out from an English port.

Accompanying the wounded were five pretty, smiling American flight nurses carrying bouquets of poppies they had picked in a field near Cherbourg a couple of hours earlier.

The planes that conveyed them back were of the same type which a few days previously had borne the first waves of paratroops into action, and had since been engaged twice gliders full of airborne infantry and dropping supplies by parachutes.

Hospital Ships

Three hospital ships were engaged on this mission. When they took off at breakfast time, in great secrecy, no power plane had landed safely in France. There were some landing strips available but no one knew if these pioneers could get safely to ground. The nurses and pilots cheerfully took that risk as part of the day's work.

Another article, sent June 10 from Somewhere in England, referring to the landing in France, and the evacuation of the wounded, some of whom were Germans, refers to Capt. English as follows:

"According to Capt. Peter English, of San Francisco, dead Nazis, their cold steel helmets still on, were lying on the ground awaiting burial. English was one of the pilots who took paratroops in gliders into France on D-day. Today he flew a perfect mission, he said."

Capt. English was stationed for a time at the Sedalia Army Air Field.

The program was in charge of Will Hurley, program chairman for July.

Guests were: J. F. Cooney, St. Joseph, with J. F. Downs and Geo. Kirk, Sikeston, Mo., treasurer of Kiwanis Mo-Kan-Ark district.

He is getting good care in the hospital, he wrote.

Pvt. Franks has been in Italy about a month.

1918 War Law On City Books

It is a fact, there is a law in Sedalia that the German language cannot be spoken on the streets, under such circumstances which might create a disturbance of the peace or cause riots. The city ordinance governing this was passed by the City Council on August 5, 1918, approved by the then Mayor A. Baumgartner on August 6, 1918. He is now deceased. It was signed by N. L. Nelson, then city clerk.

Checking over some of the many ordinances of the City of Sedalia this law was found written on the books. However, enforcement has not been necessary today inasmuch as no disturbances have been reported and certainly no riots have resulted.

The ordinance was passed as a protective measure in 1918 during the First World War. No arrests can be found on the books where anyone had been arrested for its violation.

The ordinance reads in part: "Section 1. That hereafter it shall be unlawful for any person to speak or talk the German language on any of the public streets or highways within the corporate limits of the City of Sedalia, Missouri, or within any public business house in said city under such circumstances as are liable to create a disturbance of the peace or riots.

"Section 2. Any person violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than $100 nor more than $100.00."

Nazi Robot Bombs Kill 2,752

London Evacuates Children, Some American Soldiers Have Been Killed

LONDON, July 6.—(P)—German robot bombs concentrated upon London have killed 2,752 persons and sent 8,000 to hospitals in the last three weeks, Prime Minister Churchill disclosed today.

London was evacuating children, as in 1940. The world's largest city put into use its shelters held in reserve for emergencies. An unstated number of American soldiers have been killed. Schools, hospitals and churches were among the buildings hit by the robots which carry 2,200 pounds of explosives.

The assault continued today. Churchill told Commons that 2,754 of the robots had been discharged on England in three weeks at the rate of 100 to 150 a day, but many of them had failed to reach the island or had been destroyed.

As to what the Allies are going to do about it, the prime minister promised:

"Everything in human power, and we have never failed yet. "London will never be conquered, will never fail, her renown, triumphing over every ordeal, will long shine among men. "Here we began the war and here we will see it ended."

As Churchill spoke, U. S. heavy bombers struck anew at some of the robots' takeoff sites, subjected already to a bombardment of about 50,000 tons of explosives. The RAF had hit the Pas-de-Calais area again last night.

LONDON, July 6.—(P)—The German radio interpreted today's speech by Prime Minister Churchill as confirmation of the seriousness of rocket bombs, and promised intensified attacks—but at the same time advised the German people not to expect miracles.

In addition to the 8,000 hospitalized, Churchill said, many others went home after receiving first aid treatment.

Many London Casualties
More than 10,000 of the casualties were in London.

Churchill called it a "very remarkable fact" that a "very large proportion" of the 2,750 bombs discharged from the French coast up to last midnight "either failed to cross the channel or have been shot down and destroyed by various methods."

These methods, he said, included "a great deployment of batteries; (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 1)

Want Willkie For Dewey

By Jack Bell

ALBANY, N. Y., July 6.—(P)—An oblique effort to draw Wendell L. Willkie into camp moved forward today as supporters of Governor Thomas E. Dewey bid publicly for campaign cooperation from congressional and senatorial candidates.

Although the GOP presidential nominee carefully avoided any appearance of soliciting Willkie's backing, he gave the strategy left-handed approval by including Senator Sinclair Weeks, lifetime Willkie enthusiast, in a list of Massachusetts Republicans invited to confer with him here Monday on campaign plans.

Weeks, reached by telephone at his farm in New Hampshire, told this reporter he "hoped" Willkie would support the ticket actively but had no knowledge of the 1940 nominee's political plans.

Two Small Fires This Morning

The fire companies this morning made two runs, and only slight damage resulted at both places.

A still alarm was received about 10:50 o'clock to the Missouri-Kansas-Texas freight depot, Main street and Washington avenue, where boards on a platform had caught fire. The fire was believed to have started from a carelessly thrown cigarette.

Burning trash at the residence of Charles Bolton, 400 West Fifth street, set fire to a fence about 11:40 o'clock. Slight damage resulted.

Flames Start Near Entrance of Ringling Brothers, Barnum And Bailey Circus

HARTFORD, Conn., July 6.—(P)—An undetermined number of persons, estimated by various officials at between 50 and 100, died today in a fire which turned the big tent of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus into a tragic scene of death and pandemonium.

A riding club near the big top said the tent collapsed at 2:45 p. m. (EWT) and that many persons were in the tent then.

Municipal hospital officials said they received calls for ambulances together with reports that "quite a few" people were injured.

One eye-witness said, the fire broke out, just after the first act, in an intermission. The flames started near the entrance, and crept upward.

At once, the circus band began to play and everyone in the tent started out toward the nearest exit. There was no panic.

About half an hour later, the flames had torn through the structure so far that it collapsed. Excitement ran through the city. People hearing of the fire

County Detective Joseph Mitchell said the number of dead would reach "at least 100" and that the number of injured, trapped beneath the blazing canvas when it collapsed at 2:45 p. m., in the midst of the afternoon performance, was beyond immediate estimate.

rushed to the circus grounds in anxiety to see if their families attending the show were safe.

Second Difficulty

The fire was the second difficulty encountered by the circus, set up in a Barbours street lot, since it arrived here yesterday for a two-day stand. Because of traveling difficulties, it arrived here yesterday six hours later and was forced to cancel yesterday's afternoon performance.

After tonight's performance, it was scheduled to go to Springfield, Mass., for performances there on Friday and Saturday.

While first reports conflicted as to the seriousness of the fire and effects, later reports said a number of persons were believed to have died in the flames in the rush to leave the big top before it collapsed at 2:45 p. m. in fiery ruins. The fire broke out just after the first act of the afternoon performance.

Some eyewitnesses said the circus lot on Barbours street quickly became a scene of wildest confusion. They reported women without shoes, their stockings torn, wandering in a daze on the lot frantically calling for their children.

Drug Stores Mobbed

Every drug store in the neighborhood was mobbed with persons calling for first-aid or seeking to use telephone lines.

State policy commissioner Edward J. Hickey, who was in the audience, called for all members of the department to report at once.

One report was that a busload of injured had been taken to a hospital.

The circus animals appeared to have been rescued. They were tethered on the grounds some distance from the burning tent.

As people recovered from the first shock of the fire, the pandemonium increased.

They clustered against police lines, and as each body was brought out of the ruins, the mob surged forward vainly trying to learn the identity of the victim.

At least 12 persons were carried out three-quarters of an hour after the fire began.

Mrs. Sophie Shaw of Newington said her shoulder and top of her hair had been burned and her three-year-old boy aircraft and balloons which have been very rapidly placed."

The prime minister disclosed that a special committee with "a great number of scientists and engineers" at its disposal had been set up to advise on "offensive and defensive" methods. The committee reports to Churchill personally.

The flying bombs have killed more Britons in southern England than were killed in the first 15 days of the battle of Normandy, Churchill said. Although he announced that London was on a blitz basis, with casualty lists to be announced monthly, Churchill emphasized that military operations in France came first.

"I do not want there to be any misunderstanding about it," he said. "We shall not allow the battle operations in Normandy or the attacks we are making against special targets in Germany to suffer."

Answer to People

To a Commons that had been demanding vengeance for robot warfare on civilians and had been uneasy over the government's secrecy, Churchill said this was his answer to "What are you going to do about it?"

"Everything in human power, and we have never failed yet."

Ceilings on Used Cars in Effect Monday

Expected to Stop High Prices in That Field

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(AP)—OPA ceilings on used cars go into effect next Monday, July 10. They are expected to — and probably will stop the terrific price rises in that field.

OPA has placed the ceilings at what used cars were selling for in January of this year.

These ceilings are far above what the used cars would be selling for now if there had been no price increases due to the war.

But there will be two kinds of ceilings:

1. The "as is" price. This means what it says: The car sells without a guarantee of any kind.

All individuals and others who do not have repair services must sell at or below the "as is" price. 2. The "warranty" price. Only dealers may sell at warranty prices although dealers may also sell at "as is" prices.

Classify Dealers

OPA considers as dealers only those car sellers who have normal automobile repair services and facilities. But dealers who can get outside repair work done and thus give guarantees may also sell at "warranty" prices.

The "warranty" price is higher than the "as is" price. But when dealers sell at "warranty" prices they must furnish each buyer with a written guarantee that the car is in good operating condition and will remain so for 30 days or 1,000 miles.

Neither a dealer nor any one else has to give any guarantee with a car sold at an "as is" price.

This is how the two kinds of prices would work.

Say OPA has placed an "as is" ceiling of $990 on a popular make, 1942 model car. That's the top price which can be charged for it without a guarantee.

But suppose it was a dealer who bought that same car from an individual for the "as is" price of $990 and wanted to sell it at a profit.

By guaranteeing it for 30 days or 1,000 miles he could add $100 to the $990 or he could add 25 per cent to the price he paid, $990, whichever is greater.

So, if he added $100, he could sell the car for a ceiling price of $1,090. If he chose to add 25 per cent to the $990 purchase price, he could sell the car for $1,238.

But whichever price he charged—$1,090 or $1,238—that would be what OPA calls the "warranty" price.

Now the dealer could add to the "warranty" price by making certain maximum charges for accessories. For example:

Ten dollars for any heater; $30 for any radio; and certain authorized dollar-and-cents amounts for a specific list of built-in equipment.

Before buying or selling a car you can get reliable information from all OPA regional and district offices and from war and price rationing boards.

For willful violations there are penalties ranging from triple damages to prison sentences and suspension of a dealer's right to sell used cars.

New Division
To Look After
War Prisoners*Explained by Officer
For Troop Carrier
Command at SAAFWord has been received at Sedalia Army Air Field, base of the First Troop Carrier Command, that Army Air Forces prisoners of war will be relieved of many burdens, and their relatives in this country will receive comfort and assistance through a new Prisoner of War Section set up in the Personal Affairs division of AAF Headquarters.As explained by Major G. H.
Rogers, Personal Affairs Officer
for the I Troop Carrier Command, the new section stands ready to answer questions which may occur to the next of kin of AAF prisoners of war regarding the welfare of their captive relatives and to give whatever assistance is needed for the next of kin themselves, such as obtaining employment, checking on allotments, or any other details which may be upsetting their peace of mind.When the program of the Prisoner of War Section is in full swing, Major Rogers points out,
"it will have four objectives:Expect More InformationFirst, it is expected that we will be able to satisfy all the next of kin regarding known details of the prison routine and conditions, as well as giving them do's and don'ts about packages, correspondence, and the like.Second, we offer our services to the dependents of AAF prisoners of war in respect to their domestic problems.Third, we will do everything possible to improve the camp conditions of American prisoners of war with the aid of the welfare agencies.Fourth, we will be thoroughly prepared to receive these prisoners when they return to our shores, so their future as civilians, after they have been separated from the service, will be as well assured as we can make it."The moment official word is received at AAF Headquarters that a man is a prisoner of war, the information will be placed in the hands of the Personal Affairs Officer in the post, camp, or station nearest to the home of the next of kin. That officer will immediately get in touch with the family and arrange for a convenient time to pay them a visit, if the distance isn't too great.The new Prisoner of War Section will maintain liaison with the American Red Cross, and Provost
Marshal General, the Adjutant General, the Office of War Information, and all other appropriate agencies.Sea Lion Training LureSea lines must be captured at tivity, and if caught after the age of six months, they are difficult

LIGHT LAGER BEER

DAILY WASHINGTON merry-go-round

by Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, July 6—Many people long have suspected the president of being a very patient man as far as Winston Churchill and the old fashioned British empire are concerned. Just how patient he is, however, has just leaked out. It is now learned that at one time the president sent a letter to Mahatma Gandhi in India which the British would not permit Gandhi to receive.

Roosevelt wrote the letter to Gandhi approximately a year and a half ago. It was a friendly, conciliatory message, urging Indian Nationalist cooperation with the Allies in the war.

Ambassador William Phillips, FDR's special envoy to India, tried to deliver the letter personally, but the British flatly refused permission. Gandhi was then in jail, and when Ambassador Phillips asked to be permitted to see him, the British said no. They were polite but firm. Phillips was not allowed to see either Gandhi or any other of the imprisoned Nationalist leaders.

When efforts were made to deliver the letter through the British themselves, the British again refused.

Despite the fact that the United States was sending lend-lease weapons to protect India, was using U. S. troops in North India to help ward off the Japanese, and was using other U. S. troops in the Southwest Pacific to protect Australia, the British would not permit a personal letter from the president of their chief ally to be delivered to Gandhi.

Later Ambassador Phillips talked to Prime Minister Churchill about the whole matter when Churchill was in Washington in the summer of 1943. But he got nowhere with Churchill on any phase of the Indian problem. On another occasion, the president himself tried to urge a more liberal British policy toward India, but Churchill was almost insulting. He virtually told FDR to mind his own business.

Ambassador Phillips was so incensed at the whole thing that he advised the president it was futile for him or anyone else to go back to India as envoy.

In the last few days, however, the question of delivering the letter to Gandhi has been revived. The Indian saint has now been released from jail and it may be that the British will let down the bars and permit the president of the United States to send him a letter.

Note—Ambassador Phillips once served in Canada, now is serving in London, is generally considered pro-British.

Knott's in GOP Platform
was carefully hushed up at Chicago, but some of the backstage hammering on the Republican platform nearly developed knottles. One was on Palestine. The GOP foreign affairs subcommittee voted to omit a plank for restoring Palestine to the Jews. When this came before the full platform committee, however, the things began to pop.

Leo R. Sack, Roosevelt's ex-Minister to Costa Rica, now Zionist publicity man, prodded Senator Danaher of Connecticut. Danaher demanded that the Palestine resolution be restored. Also Cleveland's Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, who supported the GOP ticket in 1940, made an impassioned plea, said a Palestine resolution would be a great vote getter for the Dewey ticket.

In the end it was restored. An even greater rumpus occurred over silver. A potent western bloc of silver boosters succeeded in wedging into the first platform draft a statement favoring silver. They were so strong that it looked as if silver would win. Finally Neil Carruthers, dean of Lehigh university and economic adviser to the committee, got on the telephone and called Winthrop Aldrich, cousin of John D. Rockefeller and head of the Chase National bank.

Aldrich, a staunch gold standard man, got busy on the long distance telephone, pleaded with platform committee members to resist the silver bloc. Finally, when it looked as if silver would win, Aldrich warned that he would take the matter up with Albany.

In the end, the taxation and finance committee yielded, let Aldrich dictate the following statement by telephone: "We shall maintain the value of the American dollar and regard the payment of government debt as an obligation of honor which prohibits any policy leading to the depreciation of the currency."

Note — The late Senator Key Pittman of Nevada used to put foreign delegates to the London economic conference to sleep with his long lectures on silver. He was largely responsible for selling silver to Roosevelt.

Work for "Happy" to do
Senator "Happy" Chandler of Kentucky, never too happy about Roosevelt, recently came away from the White House feeling better, and with the latest word on FDR's fourth-term intentions.

"Mr. President," Chandler opened the interview, "you've always been my friend and I've always been yours. I've never asked you for anything, but I think I may be able to help you. I think you're going to run for a fourth term and I want to do what I can to help the ticket."

"That's fine, Happy," beamed the president, and proceeded to lay out a few jobs for Chandler between now and election day. One of them was to support his Kentucky colleague, "Dear Alben" Barkley.

"Tell me, Happy," said the president, "are you going to do as much for Alben in his fight as he did for you?"

"I sure will, Mr. President," replied Chandler. "He made one little speech for me and I'll make one for him."

Roosevelt, under the impression Barkley had put on a great campaign for Chandler in 1942, was surprised.

"Is that all the help they gave you?" asked the president.

"That's right," replied Chandler, "and they didn't help me much on the money end of things, either. But I'm not complaining. Happy takes care of himself and gets along fine."

Happy also told the president that he had urged all his friends not to file against Barkley, but to support him.

"But can you imagine," continued Happy, "the fellow who filed against Barkley is supposed to be one of Alben's friends?"

Looking Backward

Forty Years Ago

ST. LOUIS, July 7—(Special)—Hon. Champ Clark of Missouri has been elected permanent chairman of the convention by acclamation and the feature of the morning session of the national Democratic convention was his speech on assuming the chair, the delegates going wild with enthusiasm.

Tomorrow the Sedalia ball club will begin a series of twelve games of baseball at home. Every lover of the game who can ought to encourage the boys with their presence.

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Sargent, their five little daughters and Mr. Sargent's mother of Saint Louis, arrived here yesterday afternoon. Mr. Sargent is a contractor and builder and will locate in Sedalia.

Passengers who arrived from Kansas City this afternoon report that the Kaw and Missouri rivers are still rising and already great damage has been done. Union avenue, where the Union depot is located, is flooded and fear is expressed that nothing like the worst has yet been experienced.

A. P. Espenschied departed last night for St. Louis to attend the national Democratic convention.

Corporal Parkhurst Is Home On Furlough

Cpl. and Mrs. Garnett Parkhurst, of Avon Park, Fla., came Sunday evening to spend a furlough with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Smith Parkhurst, 903 West Fourth street, and Mrs. Walker Finley and family. They were accompanied by Mrs. Parkhurst's sister, Miss Doris Dotson, who has spent several months with them in Florida.

Cpl. Parkhurst enlisted in the army air corps December 7, 1942, being stationed at Lincoln, Neb., for seven months where he attended school. He was then sent to Chanute Field, Ill., where he completed his training and is now a bomber instrument specialist, having been at his present post for seven months.

"You'll sit by me?" he asked nervously.

"Sure—but there'll be other Germans there."

He was still hesitant: "Older ones..."

She smiled: "Don't worry... they understand about you younger ones."

"I wonder... when sometimes I don't understand myself." He looked somberly into her eyes. "Goodbye, Emily."

AS she watched him walk away from her, a strange feeling passed through her. Somehow she understood his loneliness, for wasn't she, in a way, lonely herself? What was she staying here for anyway? Why wasn't she ready to go on to Big Valley? She had no dear ones to look back on. Mrs. Johnson and Betty Allerton, they had their husbands; and Pinky, his wife. Everybody had somebody... but she had always denied Emily and personal ties. The world had been her family. She had made it her life, her work, her children, everything. She had been proud about it. She had said once, "Even as a child, what the man in the White House said was always more important to me than my father's sniveling remarks about the weather!" She had written a school theme on world politics when she was twelve.

She had spent her life trying to understand the world. Rion had spent his trying to conquer it. Somewhere along the way they had both missed. She knew that now... for as he walked away from her, she saw in his walk and in the way he held his head and the way his arms moved, the indelible outline of a figure and a personality which might have meant much to her. Perhaps then, this was what she had stayed here for.

God's Front Porch

A Novel By KETTI FRINGS

Copyright, 1944, Ketti Frings—Distributed, 1944, NEA Service, Inc.

To Those Who Came In Late: This is the story of what happened to Pinky Harrison after he was killed in a foxhole. The scene is Heavenly Bend Junction, half-way point between the Earth and Big Valley. Travelers stay here until they stop looking back to Earth.

XVI

RION waited a few moments, then slipped down the rear stairs, watched Emily from the side door. She walked up and down past the house, twice, then started off. He waited until she was well into the middle of the Square, hidden by the trees, then hurried after her.

He was blushing furiously. "Emily... excuse me—Miss Keenan!"

"Well! One minute we don't speak at all. The next, it's by our first names."

"I couldn't help myself this morning."

"No, I know that." She decided not to be too hard on him, knew it was not his fault. She sighed. "Poor Rion... so tired of marching and gun-toting." Then she fixed him firmly with her eyes. "So the State is your god, even up here, too."

"It's not funny, Emily."

"I think it is. It's odd I missed the secret edition of Mein Kampf."

"Is there one?"

"There must be, with a chapter on Lebensraum in heaven!"

Her mockery upset him, and he looked down at his boots. A hard gleam came into her eyes as she thought of all the years she'd been attacking the Third Reich and had never once thought of this angle. Poor deluded Nazi idiots, creating their god on earth. What could they expect then, when they got to heaven? Except to be put in this ridiculous unnatural position of sitting around waiting for the Deity to come up!

She sat down on a bench and laughed.

"I WISH you wouldn't," Rion begged earnestly.

A robber thought changed her expression. "How did they get in here?"

Rion was embarrassed: "They came as refugees at first. To prepare the way for him."

"To prepare the way for der Fuhrer?" Again Emily laughed. "Excuse me, Emily. I believe I'd better go now."

She saw on his face, as he stood there in front of her, such genuine anguish that she rose quickly, too. She touched his hand. Her voice trembled a little with pity. "Rion... why don't you come over to our house some night for supper? Tonight!"

"Are you allowed to have guests?"

"Are you allowed to come?"

Rion thought quickly of what Wagner had said. He could pretend that it was to interest Emily and others about their plan. "I think so."

"Seven, then?"

eggs one at a time. Continue creaming until mixture is very light. Sift flour, with baking powder and salt, several times, and add to mixture alternately

with the milk. Then add vanilla.
Spread in an 8-inch buttered square cake tin and bake in moderately hot oven. When cool, split in two and spread a generous supply of current jelly on the bottom layer. Replace the top. Ice with boiled icing.

Boiled Icing
Two cups granulated sugar, 1/2 cup water, 2 egg whites, vanilla.
Boil together the sugar and water. Beat egg whites stiff, being careful not to beat them too dry.
Pour the syrup into the whites, a little at a time, beating constantly, until mixture is light and creamy.
Add vanilla. Spread. Decorate with red candied cherries. When ready to serve, cut cake in squares
the desired size.

INVASION INCREASES NEED FOR USED FATS

Industrial fats and greases and the many things made from them, including medical supplies, explosives, compass floats, and artillery
recoil mechanisms, will be needed in growing volume as the heavy fighting on both fronts continues, say officials of Standard Rendering Company, Kansas City, collectors in this area. The armed forces must have these things made from waste fats, they say, not only for purposes of enemy destruction, but also to save lives of our own men.

The housewife has the wartime job of saving these fats; the meat dealer and other retailers that of collecting them. Housewives should save every ounce of waste fat possible and turn it in to meat dealers regularly.

Standard Rendering Company will accept direct shipments from dealers, express collect, or will provide direct truck pick up service.
Address them at 635 Adams, Kansas City, Kansas, or phone Harrison 1545, Kansas City.—Adv.

All-Star Selectees Carrying on Regular Business as Usual

By Jack Hand
Associated Press Sports Writer

All-Stars have a habit of going sour when their names are called for "dream game" duty but the 1944 crop today showed signs of ignoring the pre-game jitters and carrying on business as usual.

George Munger, Stan Musial, Ray Mueller, Connie Ryan, Dixie Walker, Joe Medwick and Mel Ott of the National league cast and Paul "Dizzy" Trout and Stood Leonard of the American stood out in yesterday's major league games.

As the St. Louis Cardinals whipped the New York Giants, 4-1, in a night game, Munger upped his win record to 11-2 and Musial clubbed a double and single, pulling to within two points of Dixie Walker's league-leading average by boosting his mark to .370. The only Giant run was scored by Ott who doubled and was driven in by Medwick. Munger is slated to go into service the day of the All-Star fray. Rookie Swede Hansen was the New York loser.

Mueller tied the National league record set by George Gibson of Pittsburgh in 1909 when he caught his 133rd consecutive game for Cincinnati as the Reds dumped Brooklyn, 4-1, for their ninth straight loss. Mueller started his streak last year when he caught the last 62 games of the Red season. The Cincy "Iron Man" had one of his club's first hits off Ed Head who was charged with the loss. Ed Heusser allowed only three Brooklyn singles, one by Walker to maintain his batting lead.

Ryan was the hitting star of Boston's 7-2 verdict over Chicago with four singles in five at bats but Jim Tobin, who failed to make the All-Stars, retired the first 16 Cubs in order and allowed only one hit in seven innings although he wound up with a seven-hitter and the nod over Paul Erickson.

Dick "Kewpie" Barrett of the Phils started too late to make the big game but settled for two victories in the same afternoon over Pittsburgh, hurling the last inning to complete a "suspended" game from May 21 with a 9-4 edge and then handing the Pirates' Ray Starr his first defeat 12-2 in the regular game. As a result Cincinnati took over second place.

Trout joined the 10-win club as Detroit stopped Boston 8-1 with Emmett O'Neill taking the loss and Washington's Leonard baffled Chicago, 3-1, in a night game as Bill Dietrich, making his third start in six days, failed again in his quest for his tenth triumph.

George Caster of the Browns stopped Philadelphia in three innings of neat relief chucking and came through with a single with one base loaded in the ninth to earn a raw nod. Joe McCarthy's revised batting order worked for a Yankee 6-2 edge on Cleveland as Atley Donald out-pitched Al Smith and New York moved back into third place.

Sports Roundup

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, July 6.—(AP)—After watching some of the recent Red Cross tennis matches at Forest Hills—and one veteran observer claimed it was the best tennis he had seen in ten years—this dept. reached the conclusion that what tennis needs is a Ray Dumont. . . That doesn't mean that we want the racketeers to run the wrong way after hitting the ball; they do that often enough, anyway. . . But a few fresh ideas and some professional promotion would make it a better show and attract more spectators. . . As a starter, how about a professional version of the Davis cup competition after the war? . . . Maybe Lex Thompson, who sunk enough dough in a pro tour to deserve some sort of a memento, could be persuaded to put up a trophy.

Today's Guest Star
George Farrar, Jr., Woonsocket, R. I., Call: "The Brooklyn Dodgers, who wound up their tryout camp at Holyoke, have been looking for youths boasting basic physical ability rather than highly polished performances. So is your Uncle Sam, so what chance do the 'Bums' scouts stand?"

One-Minute Sports Page

The Reds claim Ray Mueller tied George Gibson's "iron man" record by catching his 133rd consecutive game yesterday, but the 1909 Pirate receiver not only got a six-months rest in the middle of his string but he caught 122 games before he was relieved for even one inning. . . Bobby McLean, the ice comedian and one-time speed skating champ, likes golf better than skating. A guy isn't so likely to fall and bust a couple of ribs on the golf course. . . Phil Bloom, who fought Benny Leonard eight times (six no decision, two wins) and George Levine, who had two losing clashes with Pete Latzo, are in the acting business in Hollywood and currently appear in "The Hairy Ape." . . When the Baltimore baseball park burned down the other night, concessionaires reported loss of $15,000 worth of refreshments. Probably the first time a ball park hot dog ever was really hot.

Objection Sustained
Marines at Parris Island, S. C., like to tell about the ball game some time ago when Maj. Gen. E. P. Moses, now retired, was commanding officer. . . On a close play at first, the non-com umpire called the runner out and the general stepped out of the stands and reversed the decision. . . The ump started to walk off the field in protest and Moses summoned him back and congratulated him on his stand.

Sailors at the Sampson, N. Y., naval training center, who "reserved a berth" for Red Schoendienst when the Rochester shortstop received his 1-A classification, finally got to see him July 4 as a member of the Pine Camp army team. . . Red chose the army because his four brothers are in that branch and "if its good enough for them, then it's good enough for me, too." . . George Black, former Milwaukee middleweight who fought Solly Krieger just before Solly on the title, is recovering from injuries suffered in a paratroop landing in France.

Easley Wins Handicap Golf Tournament

Two-Game Series Contest Begins Friday Afternoon

Lieut. J. J. Easley won first place with a 71 net Tuesday afternoon in a Fourth of July handicap golf tournament played at the Sedalia Country club with 32 civilian and Sedalia Army Air Field officer members competing.
Tying for second and third position with a net of 72 were Dr. Herbert Hunter, E. M. Stafford, Jr., and Rev. H. U. Campbell, with matching of scores on cards giving Dr. Hunter the second and Stafford third awards.

The ten low medalists were Stafford, 80; E. M. Willets, 80; Harold June, 84; Carl Oswald, 85; Elmer Hermann, 86; J. H. McQuiddy, 86; T. H. Yount, 86; Cecil Owen, 86; L. V. Estes, 87; Rev. Campbell, 87.

The club championship tournament will be held in August.
A two-game series between the civilian golfers of the club and officers of SAAF also is scheduled with the first contest to be played this Friday afternoon at the club course at 2:30 o'clock, with 32 entries.

Inter-City Meeting
Inter-city meetings will be held this summer with Sedalia, Jefferson City, Columbia and Fulton competing. This will comprise only a two-game plan, instead of the pre-war four, due to travel restrictions.

The first of the inter-city competitions will be played Tuesday, July 18, at Jefferson City and the second the following Tuesday in Columbia. The ten-man Country Club teams will not be playing for a cup on the curtailed schedule this year. Only two meetings were held last year also.

T. H. Yount is chairman of the men's golf committee for the Sedalia Country club and completed plans for the coming events Wednesday.
A mixed foursome for Thursday, July 20, is announced by Mrs. L. H. Hodges, chairman of the women's golf committee, and by Yount, as another feature of the club's golf activities.

Gabreski Top-Scoring Ace Of U. S. Air Force

A U. S. EIGHTH AIR FORCE FIGHTER BASE IN BRITAIN, July 6—(P)—Lt. Col. Francis Gabreski, 25 year old Thunderbolt pilot who wanted to shoot down a 28th German plane before going home to get married, got his wish Wednesday when he shot down a Messerschmitt 109 near Evreux, France, and became the top-scoring ace in the entire U. S. air force.

Gabreski got his 27th last week, tying Maj. Robert S. Johnson of Lawton, Okla., and Maj. Richard I. Bong of Poplar Wis. He had been pressing ever since for the 28th, but returned disconsolately Tuesday, exclaiming:

"We didn't see a thing—not a damned thing. I'm a Sa-a-a-d Sack."

Gabreski, an Oil City, Pa., boy went out again today and promptly got his German. Now he will take his 30-day leave, during which he said he intended to marry Kay Cochran of Grand Rapids, Mich., a girl he met in Hawaii three years ago.

Gabreski quit a pre-medical course at Notre Dame university to join the air force in 1940. He got his first German plane Aug. 24, 1943, and his enthusiastic ground crew had been predicting ever since that he would break the record.

Works All The Angles
One of them explained today that Gabreski figures all the angles. He refuses to use tracer bullets because "sometimes you slip up behind a guy and miss with the first few bursts. Those tracers give you away."

Also he goes into combat with half the amount of ammunition normally carried, contending that a full load makes the wings too heavy to turn conveniently inside a Messerschmitt.

Today Lt. Robert Keen of Jacksonville, Fla., flying with Gabreski, shot down three ME-109's to double his total score.

"Gabby—the colonel, I mean—just bring in one, two, maybe sometimes not any, but you can depend on him," declared Sgt. Joe Disfranza of Boston, one of the proud ground crew.

Gabreski came to the European theater in October, 1942, and for a time flew with a Polish RAF squadron. He holds the Polish cross of valor besides the American distinguished service cross, the distinguished flying cross with seven clusters, the silver star and the air medal.

He said his brother, Thaddeus, was a major in the medical corps in India, and another brother, Max, was in the navy. A sister, Bernice, is in the nurse cadet corps at Erie, Pa.

Save Babies In Bombed Hospital

LONDON, July 6—(P)—Dozens Wednesday night by nurses—some holding three or four infants in their arms at a time—when a flying bomb struck a hospital in southern England as the Germans' blind attacks were stepped up on the eve of Prime Minister Churchill's appearance in Commons to make a promised statement on the robots.

All of the babies were saved and the casualties were small with only one fatality—a nurse.

The blast of the bomb damaged both the hospital and an adjoining nurses home.

Famous pilots, who participated in the battle of Britain, now are taking a leading part in the fight against the flying bombs, it was disclosed tonight. They are led by Air Marshal Sir Roderic Hill, commanding the entire defense scheme against the robots, who took to the air himself today for the second time and joined a fighter patrol.

Fighter pilots reported they were very successful during the day in destroying the buzz-bombs over wide areas.

A. M. Solomon, one of Britain's best known film directors, was killed by one of the robots, it was learned.

Two Fined For Disturbing Each Other Peace

William Davis, and Mary Toliver who reside in the 500 block on East Third street, were fined five dollars each in police court Wednesday morning by Judge C. W. Bente, on charges of disturbing the peace of each other. Both pleaded guilty.

Davis was first arrested on complaint of Mary Toliver and this morning she was arrested on complaint of Davis.

Dem Keynoter

A freshman senator, Samuel D. Jackson, above, will be the permanent chairman of the Democratic national convention in Chicago. Senator Jackson, barely 49, entered the senate in January.

In the Service

Mary Morley, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morley, 406 East Third street, has received a V-mail letter from England from her friend, Sgt. Leo Smarr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Smarr, 406 East Third street, thanking her for a box she sent him containing candy and three pounds of peanuts, the latter of which cannot be purchased in England.

The letter follows:

"Dear little pal,

"Received your package and was more than surprised to get the things from you, but we boys surely do enjoy eating them, because you cannot get them over here. I took the peanuts and put them in the stove, and boy! Were they ever good or not! Well, kid, I find this good old jolly England a beautiful country, but after this job is done, back to the States for me! How are your folks? I hope they are in good health. Thank you for the package again, I will close.

Your soldier boy,
Leo."

T/Sgt. Edward J. Kaullen, who has been in England with the air corps since March, has received an air medal and citation according to word received by his wife and parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Kaullen, all of 1413 South Park avenue. The citation is "for exceptionally meritorious achievement while participating in heavy bombardment missions over enemy occupied Continental Europe. The courage, coolness and skill displayed by this enlisted man upon these occasions reflects great credit upon himself and the forces of the United States."

Lieut. (j. g.) William Reece Dillard, Jr., D-V (S), U. S. N. R., Reserve Officers' School at CavalHetaoi 34, of this city, will be graduated from the Naval Reserve Officers' indoctrination school at Tucson, Ariz., with the 20th battalion of the "Battleship of the Desert" July 12 after completing 60 days of training in seamanship, navigation, ordnance and communications, the Eleventh Naval district has announced. An administrative assistant in the Pueblo ordnance depot, prior to entering naval service Dillard attended Park college and Missouri university, receiving his BS in business administration in 1932. He is the son of Mrs. Grace O. Dillard, Chicago, Ill., and the husband of the former Miss Fannye Routon, Barnett.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Meyer of Hughesville have received a letter from a boy just back from the Pacific area which reads, in part, as follows:

"While on duty with a defense battalion in the Pacific, your son and I became good friends. I am writing this to let you know he is well and happy and a top-notch marine. Write him often, for mail means everything."

The letter, mailed in Cleveland, O., had no further return address. Mr. and Mrs. Meyer's son, Richard, has been in the Pacific 16 months.

Mrs. Robert McPherson, 501 North Prospect avenue, has received a letter from her husband, Sgt. Robert McPherson, stating he has arrived safely in England. He entered service in January of 1943.

Mrs. Wallace B. Roach, Jr., 411 West Fifth street, Wednesday morning received a letter from her husband, S/Sgt. Roach, paratrooper, telling of his combat jump into France on D-day. Among his comments he mentions the beautiful flowers over there and says that roses are as large as dahlias.

Mother Admits Choking Babes

ARMONK, N. Y., July 6—(P)—From a hospital bed where she was taken with an acid-seared throat, a 31-year-old mother admitted Wednesday, District Attorney E. T. Gallagher said, that she strangled her two children in their cribs Tuesday night—one with her hands, the other with a towel.

Medical Examiner Amos O. Squire pronounced the case double murder and attempted suicide and ordered the mother, Mrs. Renees Hatch, held on murder charges. Dr. Squire said he learned she recently had been despondent.

Police identified Mrs. Hatch as the wife of Navy Lt. Aldis Brainard Hatch, now stationed in England. They also said she was the daughter of Mrs. Russell Perkins, listed in the social register.

Bodies of the children, Aldos, Jr., 16 months, and Georgette Marie, three years old, were found in their cribs by Mrs. Betty Outerson, with whom the Hatches shared a large colonial house in this Westchester county village.

A short time later police found Mrs. Hatch unconscious in shrubbery beside the porch. They said she apparently had jumped or fallen from a porch 20 feet above the ground. She was taken to Northern Westchester hospital in nearby Mount Kisco, where she was placed under guard.

Troops of The U. S. Tighten The Ring About La Haye

Doughboys Are Believed To Still Hold Station In City's Outskirts

By JAMES M. LONG

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Friday, June 7.—(P)—U. S. troops closing a ring about the enemy anchor of La Haye Du Puits have stormed to the edge of the Forêt De Mont Castre—where strong enemy forces lie in wait—and are threatening the last wooded heights dominating the town supreme headquarters announced last night.

Front line dispatches said the only escape route out of the road and rail junction on the south was under artillery fire, and reported savage fighting toward the heights of the forest, three miles east of La Haye, whose capture would unhinge enemy defenses resting on La Haye on the west and the Bog, Marais De Gorges, on the east.

Supreme headquarters said that doughboys fought twice into La Haye in the last 48 hours and were forced back, although they probably still held the railroad station in the northern outskirts.

Capture of the heights might force the enemy to withdraw as far as Lessay, five miles south of La Haye, and Perrier, nine miles southeast.

In the brightest, hottest day in Normandy since D-day, another column coming around the great Bog on the east forged beyond the village of Culot, which the Germans once regained with a counter-attack, and fought to within a mile of Sainteny, five miles southwest of Carentan, widening the narrowest sector of the whole front in an advance of more than a mile.

Both British and Germans poured armor and infantry into the battle raging for Carpiquet airfield, only three miles east of Caen on the road to Paris, and the night communiqué said a number of enemy tanks were destroyed.

With the skies cleared at last, and the Allies free to throw their Sunday aerial punch at the enemy, German communications took a severe mauling as hundreds of warplanes went bombing and strafing transport, roads and rails all the way behind the front and on back to the Paris area.

Bombs Cut Rail Lines
Rail lines were cut by bombs at many points, fuel dumps were left blazing at Charteles, Argentan and Cereces, and dive-bombers attacked troops massing to oppose the American push southwestward from Carentan.

A dispatch from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's advanced command post declared that more and more Allied troops and vehicles—"an astonishing total"—were piling up along the beachhead for the decisive battles ahead.

Battle Great Mass
British and Canadians around Caen battled the greatest mass of German manpower ever concentrated on a narrow front in this or the last World War—one division to slightly less than three miles of front, supreme headquarters said.

The German news agency DNB said Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd Von Rundstedt German commander in the west, had been replaced by Marshal Guenther Von Kluge, counter-offensive specialist from the Russian front, possibly presaging a heavy counter blow. DNB said Von Rundstedt was in "ill health."

This appeared to be a victory for Marshal Erwin Rommel, advocate of bold strokes, over the conservative Von Rundstedt.

As the fighting raged about La Haye, U. S. troops in the bright Normandy sunshine struck from Carentan and widened that narrowest sector of the bridgehead.

Five More Japanese Ships Sunk

Forty-one Enemy Vessels Are Sent Down In Less Than A Month

By CHARLES H. McMURTRY

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, July 6.—(P)—The sinking of five more Japanese ships and destruction of nine more planes in the Bonin Islands during a Fourth of July foray by an American carrier task force was disclosed today by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz.

This brought to 41 the total enemy ships sent down by carrier planes and raised Japanese air losses to 835 since June 10 when the Fifth U. S. fleet moved into the Marianas to pave the way for invasion of Saipan.

The five additional sinkings, including two destroyer escorts, were scored in the vicinity of Chichi Jima, 600 miles south of Tokyo. Today's communiqué thus disclosed for the first time that the Fourth of July task force assault on the volcano (Kazan) and Bonin groups was extended as far north as Chichi.

Tuesday, a communiqué listed attacks only on Haha Jima (Bonins) and Iwo Jima (volcano) during which three destroyers, an oiler and a cargo ship were sunk.

Today's communiqué made the enemy's total losses in the Bonin-Jima operation on Independence day (last longitude; July 3, U. S. time) 10 ships definitely sunk, six probably sunk and at least 21 damaged.

Seven U. S. Planes Lost
Infliction of the new losses cost the Americans seven planes, five pilots and four air crewmen. Since June 10, listed American losses total 168 planes and 107 men.

These operations spread destruction along the severed line of supply between Japan and Saipan where a trapped enemy garrison appears resigned to die to the last man in a final fight on the north-eastern eighth of the island.

The Fourth of July attacks followed a carrier plane attack the previous day on Iwa Jima. That base was shelled by cruisers and destroyers on the Fourth.

Nimitz, detailing the Chichi Jima attack today, said the two destroyer escorts were sunk and a medium cargo ship damaged in an attack on a convoy 80 miles northwest of that base.

At Chichi Jima, a small oiler, a medium ammunition ship and a medium cargo ship also were sunk.

In the two-day assault on the volcano and Bonins, the enemy's total air losses were 73 definitely shot down, 16 probably shot down and 27 destroyed or damaged on the ground—116 Nip aircraft knocked out of action.

Capt. Peter English, Pilot on D Day, Then Back for Injured

Capt. Peter English, of San Francisco whose wife the former Miss Barbara Botz, of Sedalia, is making her home here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Botz, for the duration, was one of the pilots of Troop Carrier transports to carry the first wounded men from the Second Front back to an English port, by air, according to an article sent out from an English port.

Accompanying the wounded were five pretty, smiling American flight nurses carrying bouquets of poppies they had picked in a field near Cherbourg a couple of hours earlier.

The planes that conveyed them back were of the same type which a few days previously had borne the first waves of paratroops into action, and had since been equipped with two gliders full of airborne infantry and dropping supplies by parachute.

Red Fight Front Is Extended

Soviet Forces In Drive Driving Closer To The Baltic States

By RUSSELL LANDSTROM

LONDON, July 6.—(P)—Red troops, stretching their fighting front across the Pripjat marshes, nearly 200 miles below the erupting battle zone in White Russia, have occupied Kowel in southern Poland, Premier Stalin announced tonight, as other Soviet forces drove steadily closer to the Baltic states on the north.

Stalin's special order of the day announcing Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's first White Russian army had captured Kowel, large German stronghold and communications center 75 miles southeast of Brest Litovsk, followed by more than 24 hours the Germans' own announcement that they had evacuated the city.

In a dispatch from Moscow, Associated Press Correspondent Eddy Gilmore called the capture of Kowel the commencement of "a great new Red army thrust in the direction of Pinsk and Brest Litovsk" and the German radio itself said a reason for the withdrawal was to forestall a Russian pincer movement.

Take 550 Other Places
More than 550 other places were taken during the day as Soviet troops smashed westward all along the front and the Moscow communiqué said more than 5,000 Germans were killed as the Russians continued their methodical mopping up of the area east of Minsk. An entire regiment with its commander surrendered, the war bulletin stated.

Gen. Ivan Bagramian's drive northwestward from Polotsk, already within a few miles of the borders of both Latvia and Lithuania, swept into more than 150 inhabited localities, including five railway stations. West and northwest of Minsk Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky's third White Russian army captured more than 300 places.

Both drives directly threatened the city of Wilno (Vilna), disputed in battle for centuries, and the communiqué disclosed fresh bombings there and at Bialystok by huge fleets of Russian bombers during the night.

Front Over 200 Miles
Rokossovsky's front alone extended over a distance of more than 200 miles, and besides taking Kowel his troops plunged today within 11 miles of the vital railway junction of Baranowice by capturing the town of Lyakhovice. Baranowice was said to have been practically neutralized already by Soviet long-range guns and aerial bombing.

This same army also took Zhitkovice, 45 miles east of Luniniec and last big railway station before the old Polish border on the main line from Gomel to Pinsk.

This week, all the way from the middle Pripjat northward to the Minsk area, enveloped numerous other places of varying importance, including railway stations on

Salute In De Gaulle Meeting

Conferences With FDR During His Four Days' Visit

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(P)—General Charles De Gaulle and President Roosevelt clasped hands at the White House and exchanged warm greetings today at a meeting preliminary to man-to-man conferences aimed at smoothing out friction in French-American relations.

"My, I'm glad to see you," was Mr. Roosevelt's welcome. Arriving by airplane in mid-afternoon, the tall leader of the French National Committee was accorded a welcome such as has been given few foreign dignitaries not classed as heads of state.

The high command of the army and navy greeted him when he stepped from his plane while a 17-gun salute—in accord with his military rank—boomed out from a battery of cannon.

Then the French general was whisked by automobile to the White House where President Roosevelt and members of the cabinet were waiting in the diplomatic reception room.

When De Gaulle entered, the President was seated before a huge fireplace. Standing behind the chief executive was his daughter, Mrs. Anna Boettiger.

Passes Line Of Cabinet Officers
Their greeting over, the general was presented to Secretary of State Hull who said, "welcome—glad to have you with us."

De Gaulle appeared only slightly fatigued by his journey. After he passed along the line of cabinet officers, President Roosevelt called to him:

"Come over here. I think they want to take our picture." The general posed with the President and Mrs. Boettiger.

The President explained that Mrs. Roosevelt was at Hyde Park, N. Y.

Speaking in French, De Gaulle asked Mr. Roosevelt how he was feeling and the President replied he feels much better since his recent vacation in South Carolina.

There was tea on the south porch before the general left for Blair House, government-owned mansion across Pennsylvania Avenue which will be his headquarters during his stay here. For De Gaulle's visit, the tri-color floated from the mansion's flag-staff.

No definite schedule has been laid down for De Gaulle's conferences with Mr. Roosevelt. Stephen Early, presidential secretary, said they would meet intermittently during the general's four-day visit.

It was indicated that De Gaulle has written off in advance any hope of obtaining American recognition of his committee as the provisional government of France. The aim, it was said, is to improve relations generally.

British In Italy Score Gains

ROME, July 6.—(P)—Counter-attacking German troops, backed by heavy concentrations of artillery, have temporarily halted the progress of American forces up the Italian west coast at a point some 10 miles from the port of Livorno (Leghorn), but the British Eighth army continued today to hammer out gains near the center of the line on the approaches to Florence.

Doughboys, clinging to approximately half the smoking town of Rosignano, a few miles inland from the coast below Livorno, were reported to have thrown back four fierce assaults by the Nazis within 24 hours, inflicting heavy casualties on the enemy.

Frank James' Widow Dies

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, July 6.—(P)—Mrs. Ann Ralston James, 91, widow of Frank James, notorious Missouri outlaw, died today. She had been in ill health and blind for several years.

Until the last, Mrs. James adhered to the vow that the "true story" of Frank James and his equally notorious outlaw brother, Jesse James, would die with her.

For several years, Mrs. James had spent the winters in Texas and the summers at the James farm, three miles east of Kearney, Mo. The James boys lived near Kearney during many of the years of their banditry.

A son, Robert James, who lives on the north Missouri farm, is Mrs. James' only survivor.

Funeral services will be at 3 p. m. tomorrow (Friday) at the Elmwood cemetery in Kansas City.

Raids Made By Heavy Planes

Thirty-two Enemy Planes Downed: Hit Robot Roosts

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
LONDON, July 6.—(P)—More than 3,000 Allied heavy bombers—the greatest number ever hurled at Europe in a single day—struck enemy installations in Germany, France and Italy from two directions today while thousands of tactical warplanes mauled German transport and supplies in a 9,000 square mile triangle below the Normandy battlefield.

Thirty-two enemy planes were shot down; 14 Allied planes were lost as the Allies filled the skies with 6,000 sorties, including five separate attacks which unloaded more than 6,000 tons of explosives on the robot roosts around Pas-De-Calais.

The Germans reported the Allied air raiders were pressing their two-day attacks around the clock, some bombers striking western Germany after nightfall and returning west, while others swung over the upper and lower Danube and then flew south, probably back to Italian bases.

The weather was clear over Pas-De-Calais for the first time since June 24, and the American heavies made the most of it. Heavies with an escort of up to 750 fighters bombed 18 launching ramps and every bomber returned.

Daylight Attack
All bombing was done visually in this 14th daylight attack by heavy bombers on robot roosts since D-day one month ago. Photographs showed the targets were well hit.

The raid followed a blow on these nests in the forenoon by the RAF heavyweights under Spitfire escort. One British bomber was lost.

Another American task force of about 250 Liberators crossed the North Sea and hammered Germany's big Baltic naval base at Kiel, while another heavy formation of at least that strength pounded Nazi air fields in France, 70 of which have been hit since D-day along with 17 in other enemy territory.

From Italian bases, more than 500 U. S. heavies smashed at German rail, oil and other industrial objectives in northern Italy, including a viaduct in the Brenner pass.

As the assaults on western Europe continued early in the evening, residents on Britain's south coast watched one of the biggest daylight forces of RAF heavies ever seen winging toward the continent. For more than a half-hour the air seemed alive with heavily-loaded planes.

Several Die In Wreck of a Train

Report About 200 Injured As It Plunges In River

JELICO, Tenn., July 6.—(P)—Ray Ellison, mortician, said a 12-coach Louisville and Nashville railroad train, carrying troops, cracked up tonight in the Clear river gorge, killing several persons and injuring around 200.

He said three bodies had been brought to his mortuary. The engine, and two of the coaches, Ellison said, turned over into the rocky Clear Forks river gorge, and two overturned on the brink of the gorge and caught fire.

The river, he said, is shallow. The remainder of the coaches stayed upright.

The wreck occurred 11 miles south of Jellico, which is near the Tennessee-Kentucky line.

Ellison said medical aid had been summoned from Fort Oglethorpe, near Chattanooga, and the Red Cross at Knoxville.

Earlier, Lloyd Baird told the Knoxville Journal:

"Everything is confusion and no one knows how many are killed and how many injured."

Described As Bedlam
KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 6.—(P)—A Louisville and Nashville railroad train, reportedly carrying troops, cracked up in a thunderous crash at 8:30 p. m. seven miles south of Jellico, Tenn., in the Clear Fork river gorge, killing an undetermined number of persons, the Knoxville Journal reported tonight.

At least two coaches and the engine spilled over into the Clear Fork river and burned furiously.

Lloyd Baird, who reported the wreck to the Journal from his home at Jellico, said he visited the wreckage at 9:30 p. m. and described it as "bedlam."

"Everything is confusion and no one knows how many are killed and how many injured. It would be difficult for anyone to get out of burning coaches in that river alive."

Baird said scores of injured were being brought to Jellico hospital and the hospital itself was too busy for any attaché to give any details.

The L. & N. office here substantiated reports from the wreck scene and said all possible was being done to rescue persons trapped. Track crews were being rushed to the scene.

More Gigantic Rocket Bombs For The Future

By WES GALLAGHER
LONDON, July 6.—(P)—Grim, fighting Londoners are paying in blood to watch the birth of a new era in air power—flying bombs and later, perhaps, giant rocket bombs—in the opinion of many veteran American airmen.

The death and damage the flying bombs now are doing are only a fraction of the dreadful implications they carry. From the time that they began, they have been won by killing enough of the enemy to break his will to fight, and robot weapons of the future conceivably will be able to accomplish this end.

This does not mean the Germans can achieve this during the present war. They have, thanks partly to British intelligence and Allied air forces and partly to the slowness of scientific development, brought forth their weapon too late, and it has not reached the full stage of its development.

But the spirit of camaraderie that existed during the blitz is here again. While the new bomb is frightful and the people hope it will be stopped, they seem pretty well resigned to the prospect of something just as bad or worse continuing until the end of the war.

Sections of London have been affected by the robot raiders, bringing the city under direct attack from the ground for the first time in the history of modern war. Numbers of the craft have landed in London, their noses crammed with 2,200 pounds of high explosive, since the eerie assault began.

All he can do is loon death into London until the Allied armies overrun his launching sites and force him back from the coast. How long this will be no one can say, because Hitler is known to have other vengeance weapons than the V-1's.

Robot Bombs Of Nazis Kill 2,752 Persons

"All Humanly Possible" Done To Combat Attack

By WES GALLAGHER

LONDON, Friday, July 7.—(P)—More flying bombs smashed into the London area last night after a full of several hours and while rescuers still dug for victims from Thursday's morning's barrage—some of them mill workers trapped under 50 tons of debris.

The air ministry said there were casualties but less damage from the morning attack, and that defenders had one of their best days by downing "a large proportion" of the robots.

By TOM YARBROUGH
LONDON, July 6.—(P)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill, in a statement which he described as "brutally frank," told the world today that German flying bombs in three weeks have killed 2,752 persons, seriously injured about 8,000, and have done extensive damage, primarily in London, which he disclosed as the previously-censored but obvious target of the enemy weapon.

This was the toll from 2,754 of the winged missiles—an average of one death per bomb—but "it would be a mistake to underestimate the serious character of this particular form of attack," Churchill said in a lengthy statement to the house of commons, which had demanded it.

He raised the possibility that London might be attacked in the future by giant rocket bombs of a different type, on which the Germans have been working.

Speaking without his usual oratorical sparkle, Churchill did not try to sugar-coat the hard facts, did not claim to have the "answer" to the flying bomb, and promised only that "everything humanly possible" was being done to combat it.

A vast secret battle of the flying bombs had been in progress for more than a year before the first of the missiles hit England, he said, and now, out in the open, "this battle may be a somewhat lengthy affair... it is yet to be tested who has suffered and will suffer the most in that process."

Churchill declared, however, that while the German bomb had done extensive damage by blast effect, "it cannot, of course, be all compared to the terrific destruction by fire and high explosives with which we have been assaulting Berlin, Hamburg, Cologne and scores of other German cities."

Warrants Are Issued
Tonight police court Prosecutor S. Burr Leikind announced he has issued warrants charging manslaughter against four officers of the circus and said other arrests might be made. The four charged were J. A. Haley, vice-president of the circus company, John Brice, circus chief of police; George W. Smith, general manager and Leonard Aylesworth, described as chief canvas man.

Hal Ovier, press representative for the circus, termed the fire the "first great fire in the whole history of Ringling Brothers circus," and estimated the damage to circus property at $300,000.

Ovier said the cause of the fire was undetermined, but expressed the belief "it started most likely from a cigarette, intentional or accidental, dropped by someone sitting in the upper rows of seats."

Eye witnesses groped for words to describe the scene of horror which quickly unfolded before them as the first flame, described by one as so small that it "could have been put out with a pail of water," quickly became a lethal, fiery weapon.

Above the roar of frightened animals could be heard the frantic calls of mothers seeking their children and the furious crackling of flames as they first quickly enveloped the big tent and then sent the canvas to the ground in ruins.

Fire Departments Called To Grass Fire
The fire departments were called to the home of E. W. Oswald, 630 East Ninth street, Thursday afternoon at 3:20 o'clock where a trash fire had spread over some grass in vacant lots and was threatening destruction of a blackberry patch.

Mrs. Oswald, with the assistance of neighbors, had succeeded in getting a long garden hose turned on the flames and had it well in hand when the departments arrived. There was no serious damage.

Ringling, Barnum And Bailey Show Has Terrifying Fire In East

HARTFORD, Conn., July 6.—(P)—A burst of flames in the main tent of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus brought death to at least 135 persons, many of them children, and horrible injury to many others in a disaster which officials said might ultimately result in a death toll of 200.

The fire brought injuries to at least 220 persons. State Police Commissioner Edward J. Hickey, one of the 6,000 spectators in the gay audience when the first tiny flame was discovered minutes after the opening animal act, placed the number of deaths at between 175 to 200, while Clifford Fowler of the American Red Cross said in New York City he had been advised that more than 200 had perished.

By 4:15 p. m. (CWT) the huge drill shed of the state armory, quickly converted into a morgue, contained the bodies of 120 men, women and children, many of whom were trapped under the fiery canvas as it collapsed at 2:45 p. m.

Identification Difficult
The problem of identifying the dead was great. Many, if not most of the bodies were charred beyond recognition and the flimsy garments worn by women and children offered little immediate hope of establishing identity only through a long and tragic process of elimination were many expected to be given names.

One hospital reported an incomplete count showed 41 injured, while another hospital said that at least 30 children had been admitted.

In the midst of the disaster, more terrifying because of the sudden panic it created than ever the flood of 1936 and the hurricane and flood which struck this city in 1938, Governor Raymond E. Baldwin made a radio appeal for calmness as he directed mobilization of all state's emergency facilities.

Drugstores Aid Stations
Neighborhood drugstores were converted into temporary first aid stations, the state guard was mobilized to restore order and aid in the rescue work, blood plasma was flown here from Boston and soldiers were detailed to the scene from the Bradley army air field in nearby Windsor Locks.

Warrants Are Issued
Tonight police court Prosecutor S. Burr Leikind announced he has issued warrants charging manslaughter against four officers of the circus and said other arrests might be made. Holland Is Held Over For Trial

Bond Is Set At $15,000; Three Days Hearing Ended On Saturday

Edgar Holland, former Sedalia automobile dealer, but of late a farmer, seven miles northwest of La Monte, late Saturday afternoon was bound over to the action of the October term of criminal court by Judge A. M. Harlan, justice of the peace, following a three day hearing. Judge Harlan set Holland's bond at $15,000 which Holland hopes to give, probably Monday.

The hearing, on which speculation was made, would take at least four to five days, came to an abrupt ending late Saturday when Holland's attorney, Fred F. Wesner, announced "the defense rests". Immediately Leo J. Harned, prosecuting attorney came to his feet and stated, "The state recommends the defendant be bound over to the October term of criminal court without bond".

Discussion On Bond

Mr. Wesner then came to his feet and stated, "I don't think there is sufficient evidence to bind this man over at all, but so far as I am concerned I will not take issue with the court as to whether the defendant should, or should not, be bound over to the criminal court. But if the court binds this man over I think he should be permitted to give bond, and I so want to be heard on this point."

"I will take issue as to whether he is to be bound over without bond. Under all evidence and law he is entitled to bond, and if there's any doubt in the mind of the court about that phase of the case then I want to be heard."

Judge Harlan then said that if this was to be done, he would set the hearing of the discussion over until next Monday, but preferred Wednesday. At this point Mr. Wesner stated he would like to hold a brief conference with the state attorneys, Mr. Harned, and Covell Hewitt, assistant attorney general who was assisting Mr. Harned, along with the judge, and see if the matter could be settled in a few minutes.

The group left the court room and went to the private office of Roy Snyder, Circuit Court Reporter, where they discussed the point briefly and then returned to the court room, crowded with spectators, who waited to hear the latest developments.

Thanks From Judge

Judge Harlan, before the conference said, "First, before I give my decision, I want to thank the attorneys on both sides for the splendid manner in which they conducted themselves, the audience for their attention and not creating disturbances. As far as my duty is concerned," he said, "at this time my jurisdiction is to find if any crime has been committed, and second as to whether or not there is probable cause to send the defendant to the higher court, the circuit court."

"On the first question, there's no doubt a crime has been committed and as to the second, I find as to the probable guilt of the defendant the State has offered sufficient evidence for the probable cause, and it is my duty to bind him over to the criminal court."

After the conference, Judge Harlan stated, "I have come to the conclusion as to what is fair and right in such cases as this, that unless evidence is strong enough against the accused in first degree murder, the defendant is entitled to bond sufficient to hold him and see that he is here for the higher court. I am determined that a $15,000 bond ought to be sufficient."

Expects Bond Be Arranged

Mr. Wesner stated that as soon as possible bond would be arranged for Holland's release.

The first emotion shown by the defendant since the hearing began was after the setting of the bond, and several of his neighbors walked around to where he was sitting and shook hands with him. At this point, tears were seen to come to his eyes. He quickly shook hands with his friends, acknowledged their sympathetic words, and went to the office of Sheriff C. Ross Bothwell.

Thirty-Eight Testified

Only thirty-nine witnesses of more than fifty-eight were used at the hearing.

Because many persons who had been attending the hearing were under the impression that it might continue over to Monday or even Tuesday, the court room was less than half filled during the hearing Saturday. The greater number of those present were women and young girls.

Saturday's Procedure

J. T. Nutt, was the first on the stand Saturday morning the attorneys not finishing with the testimony Friday evening when court was adjourned. He continued to tell of redecorating work done in the home and again declared "I never noticed anything wrong or unusual about the home when we went there to work."

Leo Pace, Knob Noster, operator of a cleaning and pressing business, told of taking Holland to his home on Saturday night April 15 after he returned from Kansas City. He said he was accompanied by Charles Boyd, an employee in his shop, and both entered the home and were there about twenty to forty minutes, did not notice anything wrong, nor were the women at home. He also told of taking Holland on to LaMonte from the farm, and saw him in town as late as 11:30 o'clock that night.

Boyd was called to the stand and gave similar testimony.

Captain Shaw was recalled to the stand and again told of going to the Holland home about 5:30 o'clock the morning of May 18, of his conversation with the defendant, and of the defendant telling him that he did not believe the bodies were those of his wife and mother-in-law. He told of questioning Holland and arresting him early the morning of May 20.

Karl Wimer, LaMonte, operator of a lumber yard, told of Holland taking to his place a storm door and sash, covered with dirt and dust. He also said he did not notice the stain on the door until it was called to his attention by the Highway Patrol officers. He said that he didn't remember when it was taken to his place, but it could have been before April 15, and maybe a short time later.

Said Woman Not Wife

Captain Hansen was also recalled and he told of Holland's conversation with him in which he said the bodies were not his wife and mother-in-law. He told of Holland telling him, "The smaller woman can't be my wife because she weighed about 135 pounds". Hansen said that he had told Holland she weighed 155 pounds according to the investigation made. The fingerprint identification card of Mrs. Holland, obtained in Texas, was introduced and on it her weight was given at 138 pounds.

Trooper Wells was recalled and he told of questioning Holland at General Headquarters of the patrol in Jefferson City, and the testimony was regarding the weight of Mrs. Holland.

Sergeant Clark W. Huston, of the patrol stationed at Ft. Leonard Wood, testified of his notification of the finding of the bodies and an investigation he conducted in the Lake of the Ozarks area which is in his territory.

Tells Of Investigation

Sergeant Paul E. Corl, formerly of Sedalia, now of Lees Summit, testified regarding the investigation he conducted after being assigned to the case May 21. When questioned regarding any conversation he might have had with Holland, Sergeant Corl replied "I don't believe I can". He gave the same answer numerous times when Wesner endeavored to get him to be more definite in his answer to the question.

Tom Settles, LaMonte carpenter, told of going to the Holland home, with Tom Cowherd and Charles Barber to lay a new floor and do other carpenter work. He told of the removal of the threshold and laying the floor up to a new board on which the threshold had been placed, one which was in evidence when Lieut. Hockaday testified that he had obtained scrapings from the boards which he believed might be blood.

Charles Barber, LaMonte, also a carpenter who helped in the work gave practically the same testimony as Settles, and Cowherd regarding the flooring and linoleum which was taken from the floor.

Ellis R. Hall, garage owner in LaMonte, testified as to when the Cowherd car was taken to his garage by Mr. Cowherd and of Holland working on it practically all morning, Sunday, April 16.

Lowell Reavis, Ford dealer in LaMonte, told of the boat in question which was supposed to have been taken to the lake by Holland last year. Reavis testified the boat had been stored in his garage at least since June 1943, and probably two months longer than that. However, he produced a cancelled check for $150 which he gave Holland in payment for the boat, trailer and outboard motor on October 16, 1943. He said that Holland never had used the boat since last June, and he was confident that he never owned any other boat, or motor boat.

At this point Mr. Wesner stated, "The defense rests."

Testimony Friday Afternoon

Ten witnesses Friday testified in the second day session of the preliminary hearing of Edgar W. Holland.

Stains On Bucket

Friday afternoon Lt. E. I. Hockaday, of the highway patrol said that two buckets, one a mop bucket, and the second an ordinary bucket with a dried rag in it were turned over to him for investigation. Stains on the latter bucket tested positive but he was not certain that they were human blood.

Test Stains On Cars

Hockaday told of making tests of stains on two cars which had been sold by Holland to the De Tar Motor Co., in Kansas City, and also on a truck belonging to A. A. Chevalier, LaMonte, to determine if there was any evidence of human blood. However, Hockaday declared nothing of any value came from the tests.

The lieutenant also told of going to Karl Wimer Lumber Yard in La Monte, only Thursday after he had testified at the hearing and taking into his possession the much talked about storm door which had stains, identified as being those made by human blood.

John Ryan, county recorder was called and one of his records regarding quit claim deeds was introduced as evidence the Holland farm was in the names of Edgar Holland and his wife, Mollie Mattie Holland.

Tom Cowherd, LaMonte, carpenter who laid the kitchen flooring and did other carpenter work at the house testified. He told of Holland coming to him and hiring him to do the work. He told of selling his 1938 Chevrolet coach to Holland, of turning it over to him on Monday after he had taken the car to Slim Hall's garage in LaMonte Sunday morning April 16 so Holland could do some work on it. However, he did not give possession to the car until Monday.

Cowherd told of seeing Holland in LaMonte about 8:15 o'clock Saturday night, April 15, and of driving him to his farm about 11:30 o'clock that night.

He stated that when he went to the Holland farm on April 22, that he did not notice anything wrong in the kitchen, nor did he see any stains resembling blood.

Dr. D. P. Dyer, Sedalia, was called, and told of going to Columbia where he viewed the bodies upon the request of Captain J. F. Shaw of the highway patrol. He said the type of scar made from an incision when he operated on Mrs. Fairfax for gall stones, was identical as that when he operated for gall stones. Asked if it was the same as his, Dr. Dyer replied, "I would say they are very similar." Asked if the body was Mrs. Fairfax, he said "it was like that of Mrs. Fairfax, very big." Asked about identifying Mrs. Holland he said "I couldn't say."

Tells Of Offer

He was asked about a conversation which took place in his presence between Holland and Dr. John Powers, of Warrensburg. As to the conversation Dr. Dyer said, "Ed I think you are on a spot, I think the bodies are your wife and mother-in-law." He also told of Holland saying "Why she's too big * * * Now look here boys I'll give you $500 apiece and I want to get out of this."

Mr. Wesner then questioned Dr. Dyer and said, "Mr. Holland asked permission to talk to you and Dr. Powers, and didn't he explain the body in his own mind too big and if you and Dr. Powers could clarify the situation, he would pay you $500 apiece," to which Dr. Dyer answered "Yes."

Cowherd was recalled to the stand and explained the sale of his car to the court, and the visit to him by Captain Viets.

Mr. Nutt told of Holland calling on him April 21 and telling him he wanted some paper hanging done and painting. I told him if it rained I would do it because I couldn't work on an outside job which I had contracted. It rained that night so I went out to the farm on Saturday. "I didn't notice anything wrong, nor did I see any stains, which would attract my attention as being made by blood." The hearing adjourned at this point and he is to be recalled this morning.

Register Now To Give Blood

The Red Cross Blood Bank opens at the Elks Home on July 10, to continue through July 14. So far appointments are being made very slowly, and it is particularly important that appointments be made, because only a certain number of pints can be taken each day, in spite of the fact that a goal has been set. To make this possible to reach the goal appointments must be divided evenly through the days the Blood Bank is open.

Response from LaMonte, Warsaw, Florence and Versailles has been very good. Sedalians seem to be lagging, probably thinking they have plenty of time. They are asked not to wait, but to register at once, call telephone 130.

Cleaning Is Club Topic

Cleaning was the topic of discussion at the recent meeting of Dresden Homemakers club at the clubhouse. Mrs. W. E. Thompson and Mrs. C. E. Ferguson, using the popular cleaner Stoddard Solvent gasoline, cleaned three dresses, ties, a felt hat and sport coat.

Mrs. J. C. Connor thanked the club for $5.00 donated to the Crippled Children fund.

During roll call, which was answered by an original poem, Mrs. A. B. Cook, president, created much favorable comment with her poem which she had written during World War I, and which is very appropriate during these days.

The name of Mrs. C. N. Bruce, a regular and active member, will be dropped from the roll, as she is moving to Sedalia.

The next meeting will be the third Tuesday afternoon in July at the Community House. Plans for a picnic in August will be discussed.

Boy Finds Bat And Its Young

A mother bat with three tiny young bats was found by Robert M. Hall, 14, in the front yard of his home, 1205 South Kentucky avenue, Friday afternoon.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hall, Robert was getting off his bicycle in the yard when he noticed the mother bat with the new-born young clinging to her.

At first, he says, he thought he "was seeing things."

He brought the unusual family group to The Sedalia Democrat-Capital office, but no exhibit was arranged, none of the departments wishing to adopt the varmints.

Remembering that "I don't want to kill 'em," Robert, who will be a Smith-Cotton high school freshman next fall, left the news room carrying his "find" in a large paper sack and wearing a perplexed look on his face.

Real Estate Names Omitted From Original List

Through an oversight, when the list of names of the real estate men who contributed to the fund for a case for the Pettis County Historical Society museum was given to this newspaper, the following names were inadvertently omitted: E. S. Shortridge, Elmer E. Sterling, W. D. Smith, T. A. Major, E. H. Weinrich, Edward J. Hurley, M. T. Slane and the Landmann Abstract company. A total of 25 contributed to the real estate case.

Annual Hazard Of Bindweed Problematical

Control Measures Advanced By The Extension Office

Bindweed infested areas should be handled so as to bring this pest under control. Small areas should be staked out and isolated from other cultivated areas in preparation for chemical treatment this fall. If the infested area is more than a few square rods in size it may be preferable to start clean cultivation immediately.

J. U. Morris, County Extension Agent, believes that this advice is sound in spite of labor and equipment shortages because of the persistence and spreading habits of the weed. If permitted to grow unhampered, this pest will spread rapidly in a cultivated field, and its presence in a field lowers its productivity and increases the cost of production.

Clean cultivation can be started any time after bindweed growth starts in the spring by a deep clean plowing, reworking every 10-24 days with a tool which will cut the bindweed plants off cleanly 3 to 4 inches underground. Duckfoot shovels on a corn cultivator with at least a three inch overlap will work. Clean cultivation over two seasons will usually eradicate the pest.

Sodium Chlorate
Small or inaccessible areas should be treated with sodium chlorate at the rate of 3 to 4 pounds per square rod. This treatment is usually most effective when put on in late September or October. The only preparation suggested is staking out the areas and keeping down the high weeds and grass so the limits of the infested area are easy to establish and distribution of the chemical is easier.

Bulletins giving the details of these treatments are available at the County Extension Office. He can also advise where sodium chlorate may be secured. The War Production Board has allocated more material to Missouri farmers than was available last year. Actually more is available this year than has ever been used in any one year before.

Payment Provided
Under the 1944 Agricultural Conservation program, eradication of Canadian thistle and bindweed provides for payments of 10c per pound for chemical control and $10 an acre for clean cultivation. The payments must be received prior approval of the county committee and may be approved only on farms where effective weed control measures are being carried out on all adjacent infested farms and contiguous land, where infestation is limited to a single farm, or where the committee determines that there is no likelihood of reinfestation from adjacent or contiguous land.

Cookers Hold Food Flavors

The flavor of a food cooked in a pressure cooker is not the same as when that food is cooked in an oven or in an ordinary kettle with a lid. This is because the food is cooked at a high temperature by steam and without air, point out the nutrition extension specialists of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture.

If a number of foods are cooked in a pressure cooker at the same time, the odor and flavor of one does not affect the others unless some of the condensed moisture on the lid drips into the food. The moisture condenses on the inside of the cooker as the cooker cools.

When cooking food in the pressure cooker, one to two inches of water should be placed in the bottom of the cooker, and the food placed in pans on the rack of the cooker. In preparing meat, stock, soups, stews, and in cooking large pieces of meat, dried vegetables or dried fruits, the food may be cooked directly on the bottom of the cooker. All the flavor from the food is kept in a cooker, so a little seasoning goes a long way.

Less water is used when cooking in a pressure cooker than in an open kettle, as little water is lost while the food is cooking. Potatoes, carrots, beets, and green beans require no water. When cooking cereals in the pressure cooker bring them to a boil in one of the inset pans or in another pan, and then set it on the rack in the cooker.

Use about one-third less water in the cereals when cooking them in the pressure cooker. Refresh all dried fruits or vegetables before starting to cook them in the pressure as this will reduce the time needed for cooking them.

Puddings, brown bread and fruit cake may be steamed in small cans or cooked in other pans in the cooker. It is desirable to cook them for 15 minutes with the petcock open to give them a chance to rise, then close the petcock and finish cooking at from 5 to 10 pounds pressure. This prevents their being too moist or too heavy.

Enamel pressure canners, as the wartime models should not be used for cooking.

Smithton to Have War Dads

An American War Dad Chapter will be organized in Smithton Thursday night, July 6th according to R. L. Weinrich and H. F. Happe, president and secretary respectively of the United Service Organizations.

The meeting will be called at 8:30 at the Smithton Methodist church. All fathers in that community who have a son-in-law, son, daughter, or a foster son in any branch of the armed service are eligible to become a member of this organization.

Any of the members of Pettis Chapter No. 31 who wish to make this trip should report at the U. S. O. Center, Fifth street and Osage avenue, not later than 8 p. m. Thursday. Caps are to be worn and any cars that are brought will be appreciated.

Sgt. Jack Snell Reported Lost

Mrs. Charles Snell, 922 West Third street, received a letter from the war department last Thursday, telling her that all efforts to obtain information of her son, Sgt. Jack D. Snell, missing in action since May 14, 1943, are of no avail. They now report him officially lost.

Jack, who when he enlisted in the service, was with the circulation department of the Sedalia Democrat-Capital, was a gunner on an American flying fortress, the one on which he was believed lost being the "FDR" Potato Peeler Kids. He had been awarded the United States Air Medal and two oak leaf clusters.

According to information received he was one of a crew on the fortress which failed to return from a heavy raid on Kiel, May 14. Seven of the crew were known to have parachuted out.

Dauntless Gals Save, Devise

You may have heard, "War won't stop women from making pretty things." Two good examples of this were recently reported by 4-H club girls in Pettis County.

One was the case of Betty Jean Meyer, a member of the Ringen 4-H Workers south of Smithton. Betty Jean made a new suit, but she used an old lining for three reasons. She couldn't buy the right color in new material and besides the new wasn't so good as the old. Then too she was conserving material. Betty Jean also had a color problem in getting a zipper, so she demonstrated ingenuity by getting a white zipper and dyeing it the right color.

The second example of using material available is that of Ruby Lee Vajen, a member of the Bunker Hill Club in the far southeast corner of Pettis County.

Ruby Lee couldn't buy pillow tubing, so she hunted out 2 good white sacks at home and went to work. The outcome will be an equally attractive pair of pillow cases although they are not quite as beached as pillow tubing would have been.

These two examples are merely two of the many shortages in materials which young people are learning to meet through 4-H club training.

Takes Money From Soldier

Burville Todd, who resides northeast of Sedalia, was sentenced to four months in the county jail, and assessed costs in the case, Monday, by Judge C. W. Bente, sitting as ex-officio justice of the peace, on a petit larceny charge. Todd pleaded guilty to Judge Bente.

Todd was accused of taking twenty dollars out of the pocket of Private Cecil R. Howard, of the Sedalia Army Air Field, sometime after midnight Saturday, while the soldier was asleep near the Terminal Cab Co. Persons who saw Todd near the soldier called the police and upon investigating learned of the robbery.

About twenty minutes later Todd was arrested at a local cafe and taken to police headquarters where he admitted taking the money.

Audit Report Is Given To City Council

Discussion Held Relative To Place For A City Dump

Members of the City Council, meeting in regular session, Monday night, spent some time discussing the probability of a new dumping ground for the city, preferably outside the city limits. A petition, signed by 24 names, was presented objecting to the dump on Twenty-Second street and Engineer avenue, and asking the Council to declare it a public nuisance. The motion was tabled.

Richard Keenan, chairman of the sanitation committee, stated he had been looking for locations, had been unsuccessful so far as finding one within the city limits, but was now investigating one outside the city limits, which he hoped would develop into one the city could obtain.

Frank Royce, of the fire committee, reported the fireman had made repairs on one of the trucks, replacing a part with a used one they had been able to locate, and saved about one-third the cost of a new part.

Facts From Audit

A. L. Pringle, finance chairman, reported on the audit made by the Cornell Company, stating it contained many interesting facts. He mentioned specifically the report showed that between the period from May 1, 1943 and April 30, 1944, the delinquent taxes, personal, real estate and ad valorem, totaled $28,128.66, some of which had been paid since that time. The Bothwell hospital had made a net profit of $9,979.34, while the City Hospital No. 2 had a deficit of $2,256.52. The bonded indebtedness of the city is $146,000, and there is approximately $23,000 in the Crown Hill cemetery perpetual fund.

A resolution was passed directing the cancellation of about $1900 in city personal taxes, which have been outlawed. Most of the amounts are small, some as low as twenty cents.

Permits to sell intoxicating liquor were issued to: Pete Drenas, 420 1/2 South Osage avenue 3.2 beer; Mrs. Viola Miller, 317 West Pettis street, 3.2 beer; W. B. Rissler, 211 South Ohio avenue by the drink.

Hay Elevator Made At Home

P. S. Read and Frank Haar of the Quisenberry Community are very happy and delighted in the way their homemade baled hay elevator works and the labor saver it is to them in the storing of hay in their barn mows.

Last Thursday afternoon on the Read farm a crew of eight men with a pick-up baler baled and put in the hay mow 40 bales of hay. This was done in about a seven hour period, from 1:30 to 8:30 p. m. Mr. Read states that last year 11 men with a stationary hay baler could only bale and store away 350 bales per day.

This baled hay elevator is so constructed that it extends into the barn loft and will elevate the bales seven bales high in the loft. In putting in the last load of bales in the mow they tried out the elevator to see just how fast they could put hay in, and they figure they put 100 bales in the loft in 20 minutes.

The baled hay elevator was made in Mr. Haar's shop. It is 24 feet long and 22 inches wide inside. The sides are 2x6 solid staves, and the floor is 1x6 tongue and groove material. The conveyor is a chain drag with 1 1/4 inch wood bars. The axles on each end of the elevator have 3/4 inch sprockets on which the chain drag rolls.

On the upper shaft there is a 14-inch sprocket and on the power take-off shaft 3 1/2 inch sprockets. On the power take-off shaft there is a 14-inch V-type pulley and a 3-inch V-type pulley on the motor. This motor furnishes enough power that three bales of hay can be kept on the elevator at one time and the conveyor belt operates at about one revolution per minute.

This elevator not only reduces the man power need, but eliminates at least one-half of the lifting in storing the baled hay away in the mow. In other words, one man on the truck with the elevator can put the bales in the mow about as fast as three men will store them away.

This baled hay elevator is efficient and is simple enough that it can be made in most any farm shop.

War Prisoner Writes Home

O. D. Scrivner and family of California, Mo., formerly of Ottumville, have received the following letter written March 25, 1944, from his son, Lieut. Wayne Scrivner, who became a prisoner of war when his plane was shot down over Germany March 9:

"Dear Mother, Dad and Sister: "This will be the longest letter I will be able to write as we will be limited to postal cards from now on. I am getting plenty to eat and have plenty of warm clothing—thanks to the Red Cross. "We also have adequate medical care. All our crew is alive and we four officers are living together in one room. I never did get the peanuts I asked you to send, but maybe the boys that lived in our room will get to enjoy them. "You should hear from the Red Cross before long as they will tell you what you can send me and how often you can write. Don't worry about anything as I am getting along fine and was not injured.

"My money will keep coming as it did before. Do with it as you see fit. Tell all my friends 'hello.' Give to the Red Cross. They are wonderful. Hope to see you all soon. Will write as often as possible.

Love to all, Wayne."

The Scrivners received through the mail a few days ago a box of oatmeal cookies they had sent Wayne in England in February. They were not very hard and tasted pretty good.

Quiet Holiday For Sedalia

With city and county offices and most retail stores closed, with the exception of groceries, Sedalia basked quietly Monday in the warm summer air, as many of its residents took advantage of three and four days vacations, in observance of the Fourth of July. Some journeyed to the Lake of the Ozarks or took other short trips, depending in extensiveness on gas allotments and train accommodations.

Sporadic pops of firecrackers were heard over the week-end, Monday and that night, the noise of this customary manifestation of independence being considerably reduced from the peacetime years.

The explosions on battlefronts, where hundreds of Sedalia and Pettis county men are serving their country are fierce enough, however, and today, Independence day, in the lull of the fighting these boys of yesterday will recall perhaps the fun of play fire-works, laugh rather grimly and continue in the struggle to aid the cause of liberty, the foundation stone of the democracy of the United States.

In The Service

Mr. and Mrs. George Perriguy, route three Sedalia, received word their son, Corporal Earl Perriguy, has arrived overseas, somewhere in England.

Pfc. and Mrs. Charles N. Smith and son, Mickey of San Antonio, Texas arrived to visit their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest May and other relatives of Smithton.

Sgt. Joe McEniry, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. McEniry of Dal-Whi-Mo Court, who has recently been moved from Africa to Italy, writes interestingly of some of his experiences in that country. His letter to his parents reads in part:

"As you will know by my V-mail I left my last station after eighteen months. Was amused when I left the adjutant ribbed me a bit about the plane ride, not knowing if I had ever been up in a plane. He asked me if I had anything to say before I left. I just said I hoped I wouldn't have eighteen months in my next stop.

"The one village I have been able to visit is what I thought would be typical of Italy. The streets for the most part are narrow and the cobble stones are well worn with the ages. Buildings are built around a courtyard which to date I haven't been able to figure out. Don't know if they are a place to sit around or a place to deposit the garbage and general rubbish. Sewage systems are something they are waiting to see if they are successful in that foreign country of America (the U. S.) ...

"I can't help but recall something that Lin Yutang wrote, 'One of the greatest things about the United States is the abundance of soap.'

"Have been trying to keep up with the St. Louis Browns. I sure would like to see them win the pennant."

than a mile into the village of Culot, four miles southwest of Carentan. The enemy hit back in strength, forcing the Americans from the town, but the doughboys took up positions just outside.

In general, the Allies kept up the progress which had liberated 1,313 square miles of French soil since D-day, an average of about 43 square miles a day. The Americans liberated three towns—Glatigny, four miles southwest of La-Haye, Scorman, nearby, and La Butte, six miles east at the edge of the big Bog, the Marais De Gorges.

Far behind the front the French underground was fighting so well that the supreme command released a special communique detailing its accomplishments—five districts liberated, vital enemy troop lines south of Normandy choked off, and whole enemy divisions engaged.

(In Washington, Acting Secretary of War Patterson declared the Allies were building up in Europe a fire-power four times greater than the Germans—including everything, "small arms fire, grenades, mortars, artillery, airplane bombs and rockets.")

The special communique from Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters said the Maquis and other organized groups in France were far surpassing mere guerrilla sniping and raids, and were engaged in full force battles into which the Germans in some places had thrown tanks and airplanes. The Germans lost 150 dead and 15 captured in one such fight.

Districts liberated were Vercors, southwest of the Swiss border; part of the department of Gers between Bordeaux and Toulouse in southern France; the department of Doubs, just west of the Swiss frontier; the department of Ain, northwest of the Swiss frontier, and the department of Ardèche on the west side of the Rhone valley in southern France.

Passage of troops and supplies through these areas was possible only with major German military support.

As to what the Allies are going to do about it, the prime minister promised:

"Everything in human power, and we have never failed yet."

"London will never be conquered, will never fall, her renown, triumphing over every ordeal, will long shine among men."

"Here we began the war and here we will see it ended."

As Churchill spoke, U. S. heavy bombers struck anew at some of the robots' takeoff sites, subjected already to a bombardment of about 50,000 tons of explosives. The RAF had hit the Pas-de-Calais area again last night.

LONDON, July 6—(P)—The German radio interpreted today's speech by Prime Minister Churchill as confirmation of the seriousness of rocket bombs, and promised intensified attacks—but at the same time advised the German people not to expect miracles.

In addition to the 8,000 hospitalized, Churchill said, many others went home after receiving first aid treatment.

Many London Casualties

More than 10,000 of the casualties were in London.

Churchill called it a "very remarkable fact" that a "very large proportion" of the 2,750 bombs discharged from the French coast up to last midnight "either failed to cross the channel or have been shot down and destroyed by various methods."

"These methods," he said, included "a great deployment of batteries, aircraft and balloons which have been very rapidly placed."

The prime minister disclosed that a special committee with "a great number of scientists and engineers" at its disposal had been set up to advise on "offensive and defensive" methods. The committee reports to Churchill personally.

The flying bombs have killed more Britons in southern England than were killed in the first 15 days of the battle of Normandy, Churchill said. Although he announced that London was on a blitz basis, with casualty lists to be announced monthly, Churchill emphasized that military operations in France came first.

"I do not want there to be any misunderstanding about it," he said. "We shall not allow the battle operations in Normandy or the attacks we are making against strategic targets in Germany to suffer."

Answer to People

To a Commons that had been demanding vengeance for robot warfare on civilians and had been uneasy over the government's secrecy, Churchill said this was his answer to "What are you going to do about it?"

"Everything in human power, and we have never failed yet."

Report Of A Prowler

Deaths May Reach 200 In Circus Blaze

fired from the big top without injury, said:

"It was only a little blaze when it started—it could have been put out with a pail of water. Suddenly, I saw that little flame starting in the sidewalk about 75 feet inside the entrance. It spread awfully fast—right up to the top. Everybody was trying to get out at once. It was a terrible scene. People were knocked down, and other people walked on them. Outside there was tremendous confusion."

Another eye witness, policeman Arthur Barnard, who lives just across from the circus grounds, said "so many kids were hurt because the flaming tent dropped right on them."

"They shinned down the ropes and poles," he said. "Some of them were laughing and excited."

Up Like Puff Of Smoke

Clarence E. Wilson, a business office employee of the Hartford Times, was about to quit the circus grounds after leaving his wife and child at the big tent when he saw the burst of flames that signalled the start of terrifying pandemonium.

The tent, he said, "went up in a puff of smoke," and within ten minutes it lay "like burnt paper as far as I could see."

"I saw rows of charred bodies lying between the burned bleachers," said Wilson, who did not learn until some time later that his wife and son had escaped safely. "They showed no evidence of being trampled on, but were scorched and burned. The heat was intense and women and children were running out of the grounds. Men were crying for their children. There was a terrible howling and screaming and panic."

Band Plays To Alay Fears

Many were killed and injured, eyewitnesses said, in the rush for the exits which came even as the band began playing to allay the fears of the thousands inside the big top. In contrast, others said, circus employees went quietly and swiftly to work saving the animals and trying to restore calm.

Over reported that all the animals were saved.

Most accounts of the tragedy agreed on one point, that the fire, small at the start, spread with amazing rapidity.

Said Everett Dow, a Hartford Courant reporter, who was in the audience:

"The big carnivora in the two caoes at either end of the arena had just completed bowing out to the laughing applause of the multitude when the shrieks of 'fire' rose above the music of the band."

"The famous Wallenda family, highwire performers, had just swung up to their high perches as the flames cleared to the wall of the southeast corner of the big top and began eating upward and outward into the tent roof."

"Most of the crowd was oblivious of the blaze until one of the Wallendas, high in the tent pointed to the speedily advancing flames and cried 'the tent's on fire.'"

Dow said the danger was first grasped by spectators remote from the fire. Those closest to it seemed momentarily stupefied and incredulous. But only for an instant or two. Then they joined the rush for exits, a race many of them were destined not to win.

The circus, which opened here last night after a six-hour traveling delay had forced it to cancel its first afternoon performance yesterday, was to have gone to Springfield, Mass., for performances on Friday and Saturday.

Its July schedule called for it to go then to Albany, Schenectady, Utica, Syracuse, Rochester and Buffalo in New York and Akron and Cleveland in Ohio.

the line from Minsk to Baranovice.

Farther south the capture of Kowel, saluted by 12 salvoes from 124 guns in Moscow, tore a new gap through toward Warsaw and the heart of Poland.

The city, just 36 miles from the 1939 line from which Germany launched its war against the Russians, had been two-thirds encircled since the close of the Soviet winter offensive and vulnerable to capture whenever the Russians chose to resume their assault in this sector.

One of the first effects of its capture was to outflank Pinsk, the Polesie district capital some 80 miles to the northeast.

Ceilings on Used Cars in Effect Monday

Expected to Stop High Prices In That Field

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON, July 6—(P)—OPA ceilings on used cars go into effect next Monday, July 10. They are expected to — and probably will stop the terrific price rises in that field.

OPA has placed the ceilings at what used cars were selling for in January of this year.

These ceilings are far above what the used cars would be selling for now if there had been no price increases due to the war.

But there will be two kinds of ceilings:

1. The "as is" price. This means what it says: The car sells without a guarantee of any kind.

All individuals and others who do not have repair services must sell at or below the "as is" price.

2. The "warranty" price. Only dealers may sell at warranty prices although dealers may also sell at "as is" prices.

Classify Dealers

OPA considers as dealers only those car sellers who have normal automobile repair services and facilities. But dealers who can get outside repair work done and thus give guarantees may also sell at "warranty" prices.

The "warranty" price is higher than the "as is" price. But when dealers sell at "warranty" prices they must furnish each buyer with a written guarantee that the car is in good operating condition and will remain so for 30 days or 1,000 miles.

Neither a dealer nor any one else has to give any guarantee with a car sold at an "as is" price.

This is how the two kinds of prices would work.

Say OPA has placed an "as is" ceiling of $990 on a popular make, 1942 model car. That's the top price which can be charged for it without a guarantee.

But suppose it was a dealer who bought that same car from an individual for the "as is" price of $990 and wanted to sell it at a profit.

Guarantee Raises Price
By guaranteeing it for 30 days or 1,000 miles he could add $100 to the $990 or he could add $25 per cent to the price he paid, $990, whichever is greater.

So, if he added $100, he could sell the car for a ceiling price of $1,090. If he chose to add 25 per cent to the $990 purchase price, he could sell the car for $1,238.

But whichever price he charged—$1,090 or $1,238—that would be what OPA calls the "warranty" price.

Now the dealer could add to the "warranty" price by making certain maximum charges for accessories. For example:

Ten dollars for any heater; $30 for any radio; and certain authorized dollar-and-cents amounts for a specific list of built-in equipment.

Before buying or selling a car you can get reliable information from all OPA regional and district offices and from war and price rationing boards.

For willful violations there are penalties ranging from triple damages to prison sentences and suspension of a dealer's right to sell used cars.
